

Three Pillars To Contract Success In Capital Projects

Oil and Gas IQ has posted a free on-demand webinar on better management of contractual information to reduce major cost overruns and delays in oil and energy projects.

Information can be both structured and unstructured, formal and informal, and marshalling these efficiently will guarantee a successful formula for all oil and energy companies to better do their business, Oil and Gas IQ says on its website.

The three pillars discussed in this webinar include understanding and organising all that constitutes Contract Relationship Information, fostering communication between buyer and contractor teams, and maintaining a structured approach to information throughout the lifecycle of a project.
