

Top 50 Biglaw Firm Says A Full Reopening in 2021 is Unlikely

“The morning air is getting brisk and summer officially ends in two days. Another thing that’s ending is Biglaw firms hopes and dreams of getting associates and staff back into their offices before the new year begins. Thanks to the continued assault of the coronavirus crisis, many of the nation’s most,” reports Staci Zaretsky in Above The Law.

“Prestigious law firms have delayed their reopenings numerous times. But how many postponements does it take for a firm to realize that it may not be safe or wise to reopen in full in 2021? For Holland & Knight a firm that brought in $1,044,337,000 gross revenue in 2020 and recently completed a merger with Thompson & Knight the third time.”

Read the article.