

Trump's Supreme Court List: All Conservative, Some Provocative

Donald Trump's list of people he would consider nominating to the Supreme Court includes judges who have indicated support for various conservative causes, range in age from 41 to 58 and hail primarily from conservative and Republican-governed states, reports Reuters. The eight men and three women all are white.

The list includes William Pryor, who as Alabama attorney general, urged the U.S. Supreme Court in 2003 to uphold a Texas law banning gay sex.

Another is Texas Supreme Court Justice Don Willett, who earlier in his career was part of Texas' legal team that won a Supreme Court battle to display the Ten Commandments on a monument in the state Capitol.
