

WEF 2022: Ripple CEO reveals he visited SEC several times before lawsuit struck

“Brad Garlinghouse, the CEO of cross-border payments company Ripple, spoke during a panel discussion Monday at the World Economic Forum in Davos, Switzerland.,” reports Tom Farren in the Coin Telegraph.

“Garlinghouse, who also occupies a role as a member of the company’s board of directors, commented on a wide range of topics, most notably the current status of regulation in the United States versus G20 nations.”

Read the article.