White Collar David DiBari Joins Womble Bond Dickinson in D.C.

September 16, 2025, Womble Bond Dickinson has added David D. DiBari as a partner in its Washington, D.C., office, strengthening its white-collar and cross-border investigations practice. He joins the firm's Business Litigation group with over 35 years of experience advising multinational corporations and financial institutions on white-collar defense, financial crime compliance, and international regulatory issues.

His practice focuses on economic sanctions, anti-money laundering, anti-corruption enforcement, and export controls. The firm said his appointment aligns with its strategic priority to expand its regulatory and enforcement capabilities, especially amid heightened federal scrutiny.

Before joining Womble, DiBari held leadership roles at an international law firm, including Global Co-Head of the Risk Team and Head of Regulatory Investigations and Financial Crime for the Americas. He also served as managing partner of that firm's Washington, D.C., office.

DiBari has led internal investigations and advised clients on enforcement actions by the Department of Justice, Securities and Exchange Commission, and the Office of Foreign Assets Control. He has also counseled corporate boards on crisis response and enterprise risk.

He holds a J.D., cum laude, from Albany Law School and a B.A., cum laude, from Colgate University.
