White Paper: Analysis of the Decision to Engage the Bid Protest Process

Watson & Associates LLC has posted a complimentary white paper analyzing considerations involved in the bid protest process.

The government does make mistakes in the bidding process, the firm says on its website. However, understanding protest procedure and legal standards could help you.

The firm advises keeping in mind that the bid protest regulations can be tricky, there is never too much information for you to make a decision, and always consider getting the help of counsel.

Download the white paper.