Wingstop Appoints New General Counsel

- Wingstop Restaurants Inc. has appointed Jay Young to be the company’s next general counsel.

Young will serve on the company’s executive leadership team, reporting directly to President and CEO Charlie Morrison.

In a release, the company said Young joins Wingstop during a year of record-setting growth.

“We are delighted to welcome Jay, a great addition to the Wingstop team,” said Charlie Morrison, Wingstop President and CEO. “Jay is a highly-experienced executive whose business and legal acumen will be invaluable to us as we continue to aggressively grow our proven concept. We look forward to his contributions.”

Young brings more than 18 years of legal expertise to Wingstop, including an extensive background in the restaurant and financial services industries. Before joining Wingstop, Young served as Senior Vice President and General Counsel for CEC Entertainment (Chuck E. Cheese), a nationally recognized leader in family dining and entertainment.

Read the story.