Why You Really Should Read Your Employment Contract

- In a new online audio discussion, Bloomberg takes a look at "all the stuff you sign when you sign on for a job."

Citing nondisclosure agreements required for staff and volunteers in the Trump campaign, the turmoil at Fox News after Roger Ailes stepped down from the top post, and a poll that showed that up to 90 percent of respondents did not read their employment contracts, Bloomberg calls on labor and employment lawyer Brett Gallaway to break down the standard terms of a boilerplate contract and what signing that dotted line really means.

Listen to the discussion.